TAKES HER TIME.

It Will Be Monday Before Spain Replies to America's Offer Regarding Philippines.

HER BACK-DOWN IS INEVITABLE.

An Attempt to Extract More Than the Twenty Million Dollars Will Be a Flat Failure.

There Will Be No Alternative Bargain—Spain Asks $100,000,000 for the Philippines, or $50,000 000 if Mindanao Is Taken Out.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—It is now known that Spain will exhaust her time limit, which expires on Monday, before replying to the American offer regarding the Philippine islands. In the meanwhile, the Spaniards are canvassing the entire field and exhausting every resource to postpone the inevitable. As cabled to the press associations on Wednesday, they could not accept the American ultimatum as final without asking if it really were so. That applied to the time limit. Now, the Spaniards apparently doubt the fixedness of the amount the Americans offer for the Philippines, and Friday they sent a communication to the American commissioners, asking if the latter would accept a counter proposal by Spain to cede the Philippines for $102,000,000. Spain imagines the Americans might be willing to lop off the great island of Mindanao from the Philippines and pay Spain $50,000,000 for what remained, instead of $20,000,000 now offered for the entire archipelago.

Spain will learn in response to such inquiries that Americans employ the word ultimatum to signify ultimate conditions. However strenuously Spain may seek to increase her money advantage for the cession of the Philippines, she will finally be compelled to know that the United States' offer means $20,000,000, no more and no less, and that the whole archipelago must pass to the United States for that sum. Spain, before giving up or turning away, will also propose some alternative bargain of the Carolines or the Canary islands to be held in the possession of the United States in addition to the Philippines on condition that Spain be permitted to retain her sovereignty in the Philippines. In other words, Spain would cede certain territory in the Carolines and Canaries and the control of the Philippines by the United States under a nominal sovereignty and, as a further inducement, propose that the United States shall pay Spain no money on account of the Philippine islands.

MADRID, Nov. 26.—After visiting the queen regent Friday, in order to condole with her majesty on the death of her husband, King Alfonso XII., who died on November 25, 1885, the ministers met in council. They were occupied exclusively with the peace question. Eventually the ministers approved the instructions to Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish peace commission, drawn up by the foreign and cabinet ministers, which were telegraphed to Paris Friday night.

While the cabinet ministers were most reserved regarding the instructions sent to the Spanish commissioners, it is believed the Philippine question will be settled on next Monday.

The premier, Senor Sagasta, was asked if Monday's session would see the close of the Paris conference and the signature of the treaty of peace. He replied: "Who knows? May be a fresh incident will arise or further consultations or exchanges of views will be necessary."

Dined With the Queen

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The United States charge d'affaires, Mr. Henry White, and Mrs. White, dined at Windsor castle with the queen Friday evening and passed the night at the castle.

Another Attempted Escape.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—Cal Hupp, a Wayne county prisoner, made an attempt to escape from the penitentiary Friday noon by climbing the stockade, preparatory to going over the wall. His plans were thwarted by several guards armed with Winchester rifles.

Smallpox at Wyoming.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.—The smallpox cases of Wyoming were investigated by the state board of health Friday. Secretary C. O. Probst says that, while the cases are undoubtedly smallpox, they are of the lighter form, similar to those prevalent throughout the state.

MAMMOTH ROBBERIES.

House Full o' Valuable Goods Located in Toledo—Stealings That Amount to $25,000 Are Alleged TOLEDO, O., Nov. 26.—Detectives here late Friday night located in a barn on Germania street thousands of dollars worth of rich millinery goods, which were stolen from dealers in Chicago, Milwaukee and other western cities, and shipped here last month. It is claimed some of the goods were obtained under false pretenses. They came here in several shipments, and while the consignees names were given as Brown, Jones, Smith, Haviland and other fictitious titles, the detectives have learned that it was the same man, under various aliases, who received all the goods here. The goods consist of costly plumes, ostrich feathers, silk and satin ribbons and other such valuable articles. It is estimated that the value of the goods found Friday night will reach between $25,000 and $30,000, perhaps more. Two Chicago detectives are here, and they have identified several thousand dollars' worth of the articles as belonging to Chicago merchants, Gage Bros. & Co. being one of the firms. The goods were shipped here over different lines of railroads in order to throw off suspicion. Local detectives have been working on the case for several weeks, and by getting hold of the draymen who hauled the goods they finally located them. Deputies Sheriff Pine and Spain arrested a man giving the name of Charles Sargent, and a woman giving the name of Miss Winnie Weaver, alias Mrs. C. V. Lawrence, of Missouri street, Friday night in connection with the robberies.

CRACKSMEN AT WORK

The Treasurer's Office at Millersburg, O., Robbed of a Small Amount—The Safe Was Not Molested.

MILLERSBURG, O., Nov. 26.—County Treasurer F. F. Smith, upon reaching his office early Friday, discovered that both outer doors of the vault of his office had been blown off by cracksmen some time during Thursday night. The inner vault was not molested, but $200 was stolen, including $80 in pennies and $75 in lodge money. This was in the outer vault. The robbers gained access to the office by breaking in a door. Bloodhounds have been sent for to trace the robbers.

To Prevent Spread of Smallpox.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—Secretary Probst, of the state board of health, returned Friday morning from Bloomingburg, Fayette county, where he had been called to diagnose several cases of alleged chicken pox, and left at once for another part of the state where other reports had been made. Dr. Probst did not report upon the Bloomingburg case. The number of new cases is on the increase. Dr. Probst urges that health officers everywhere to be extremely careful in the diagnosis, and severe in maintaining the quarantine regulations.

Has Forgotten Everything.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—Frank W. Davey, who shot and probably killed James Dixon, porter of the Corrodi hotel, denies that he had any revolver, or that he did any shooting, and asserts that he has forgotten everything that happened in the hotel on the morning in question, save that he defended himself from some one who tried to rob him. Early Friday morning Lemuel Haines, of this city, who is confined on a charge of making menacing threats, hanged himself and was cut down by Davey.

She Used Gasoline.

FOSTORIA, O., Nov. 26.—Mrs. Charles F. Krugman poured gasoline into a cook stove, and died after several hours' suffering. Her husband was badly burned on the hands and face in trying to tear the burning clothes from her, and a three-year-old daughter had her hands badly burned.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The Cabinet Convened Late Friday Night on the Call of President McKinley.

ALL PRESENT SAVE SECRETARY LONG.

Important Advices Was Received Friday Evening From the Peace Commissioners at Paris.

The President Cabled the Commissioners Reiterating His Former Instructions—They Will Insist That the Demands Be Considered.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—A special meeting of the cabinet was held at 10 o'clock Friday night. All the members were with the president except Secretary Long who is out of the city.

The meeting was called by the president in order that his advisers might consider with him advices received Friday evening from the American peace commissioners at Paris. It is understood that the advices related to counter proposals informally made to the American commissioners by the representatives on the commission of the Madrid government.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which lasted only 40 minutes and was held in the parlors of the white house, Secretary of State Hay said to a press representative that the president had received some advice from Paris that he desired to lay before the cabinet, and that he had called the members together to consider them. The nature of the advices Mr. Hay declined to discuss, as he said that was a matter which could not be gone into for publication at this time. He added, however, that after considering the contents of the dispatches, the president had cabled the American commissioners reiterating his former instructions.

It is understood that one point, new in negotiations thus far, was raised in the dispatches received by the president. It is related to a modification of the terms of the proposition submitted to the Spanish commissioners, a few days ago by the American commissoners but in just what particular the proposed modification was to be made could not be ascertained. That the proposition was not accepted was made clear by the president in cabling to the American commissioners a reiteration of his former instructions. The American commissioners will insist that the demands of the United States, as presented to Spain a few days ago, be considered without further modification. That they will be acceded to by the Spanish commissioners is the earnest belief of the cabinet and the president.

A Tragedy in Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 26.—In North Little Rock Friday morning M. B. Lane a section foreman, while in a drunken frenzy emptied both barrels of a gun loaded with buckshot into his wife's face, killing her instantly. The woman's son, V. N. Wright, seized the gun and broke it over the murderer's head, crushing the skull. The Lanes came from Evansville two years ago.

Collision in a Tunnel.

From Defiance to Columbus is Practically Assured—Part of the Track Is Already Laid—Citizens at Defiance Are Raising the Money They Pledged a Few Years Ago.

The projectors of the Columbus, Lima & Milwaukee announce with confidence that they will complete the road from Columbus to Defiance this winter. About four miles of the track is now laid and an engine is at Ottawa ready to be put to work on the construction. The citizens of Defiance are bestirring themselves to raise the money pledged a number of years ago and it is quite sure the amount will be raised by the time the road is completed to that town, which will be the terminus of the road for a few years, it is thought. Defiance people are delighted at the prospect of securing the third railroad.

In the State Supreme Court on Tuesday the attorneys for the plaintiff in the case Patrick Mulcahey, of Lima vs. the L. E. & W. railway company, made a motion to dispense with printing the bill of exceptions in case No. 6,234 on the general docket. The motion was overruled.

BLIZZARDY.

The First Snow Storm of the Season Visits Lima.

The Beautiful Was Drifted In Immense Heaps by a Heavy Wind From the South.

A severe taste of winter was enjoyed (?) by Limaites to day. It was Lima's first snow storm this winter, and the jingle of the sleigh bells were heard and many other signs of winter were in evidence.

The snow commenced falling at about ten o'clock last night and snow flurries continued most of the day.

The thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning registered but 17 degrees above zero, but if the weather man's tip is a straight one, it will go much lower before Sunday. A cold wave is scheduled for to-night, but the weather man was a little slow as the chilly blasts have already arrived.

Reports from Chicago this morning stated that the temperature there was rapidly falling.

The street cars experienced considerable trouble in getting over the line all day, but they were all kept going.

Amusements.

Chas. Coghlan and "An Enemy to the King," will soon be seen here.

"At Piney Ridge," the play presented at the opera house last night, was a rare treat indeed, and was deserving of a larger audience. It is a beautiful play and was presented by a company of artists.

"The Sunshine of Paradise Alley," Denman Thompson's new play, which is already in its third successful year, and comes here Saturday, Dec. 3d, shows life among the poor, and is as jolly as possible and truthful at that. It is of this play that Ella Wheeler Wilcox says: "It left a sweet taste in my mouth."

Geo Wilson, of the Wilson-Cleveland Minstrels, has managed many companies. He is a minstrel himself and is the most popular man in blackface comedy that the country has ever seen. Geo. Wilson is beloved by the masses and the mere mention of his coming sets the admirers of "Girls, I Love You All" and "Waltz Me Again" a fidgeting for his speedy arrival. His act is unalloyed delight. This is not exaggeration, for the verdict of the press, rival minstrels and the public in general has stamped him as the wearer of the imperial purple in the merry realm of minstrelsy. The minstrels will appear here next Monday.

Hal Reid, the author and star of the "Knobs O'Tennessee" which will be at the opera house next Tuesday evening is very fond of telling stories on his manager and here is his latest: "Some years ago Jim Brawne, my present manager, had out an 'Uncle Tom's Cabin Co.' and needed music for his performance. He could only find a quartet of negroes who played entirely by air. Jimmy explained Eva's pathetic death scene and asked if they knew a sad air to play. They said; 'no, but you jes' whistle one 'en we kin ketch it.' So Jimmy whistled 'Sweet Spirit Hear My Prayer'. They played it after him. The curtain went up and the play went on. Eva's death came in due time. The actors were waiting for the music. Eva was dying beautifully when there came several shrill blasts through the tin ti be whistle from the orchestra to the stage and the leader said so distinctly that the whole house heard it: "Say boss, jes' whistle us about four bars ob dat ar wiggildey music 'en we will play her to def."

FOR FORGERY

C. L. Roebuck Was Arrested Last Night—Passed Several Bogus Checks in Lima.

He Is Also Wanted at McGuffey for Some Offense—More Robberies—Police Doings.

Last spring C. L. Roebuck, who hails from Delphos, passed a forged check on the grocer at the corner of Main and Circular streets, amounting to $9.50, and another amounting to $7.50 on Tabler & Zimmerman. Immediately after the forgery Roebuck disappeared and remained out of the city until last night when he returned and fell into the arms of Officer Roney, who locked him up. Roebuck is wanted for a similar offense at McGuffey.

As was stated in yesterday's NEWS thieves are still in possession of the city. The home of L. Lawrence was disturbed by some individual who gained entrance by unlocking the front door. Mr. Lawrence was awakened by the intruder and when discovered his burglarship made a hasty retreat.

The three tramps, who had in their possession a quantity of stolen goods, and who were tried before Mayor Prophet yesterday morning, were found guilty of vagrancy and fined $5 each and costs. They hadn't the price and were sent below.

At an early hour yesterday morning the home of E. W. Fritz, 335 East Market street, was visited. Mrs. Fritz was awakened by some one on the roof of the porch trying to force open the window. She got up and lighted a lamp and thus frightened the fellow away.

Sergeant Wingate arrested three strangers yesterday afternoon for drunkenness. They had followed two young women quite a distance when the police were notified. They agreed to go to a hotel and were released.

Thieves burglarized Edward Vessey's grocery at the corner of McKibben and West streets night before last and stole goods amounting in value to $8. They also carried away the key to his front door.

Wm. Bryan, of the European hotel, charged with running a house of low resort, will be tried before a jury next Tuesday. The case was to have been heard yesterday.

Theo. Settlemyer, who lives near Cridersville, was fined $4 for drunkenness. He paid the assessment and went his way rejoicing.

Roebuck was arraigned at 2 o'clock this afternoon. He pleaded not guilty and will have his hearing at 4 o'clock.

A pair of trousers was stolen from the work shop of Sherman Woerner's tailoring establishment yesterday.

The two strangers arrested last night on suspicion will be arraigned this afternoon.

COURT HOUSE.

Next Tuesday Will be Bill Day With the Commissioners—Other Matters.

Next Tuesday will be bill day with the commissioners.

The hearing of the case of the Hercules Torpedo Co. against Mike Schaill, occupied the attention of Judge Richie to-day.

Professor E. C. Akerman, of Bluffton, a prospective candidate for county auditor, was shaking the hands of the court house officials to-day.

The Circuit Court judges, before adjourning yesterday announced that on next Monday afternoon at two o'clock they would hand down their decisions.

Findlay Republican: City Solicitor Foster and Attorneys George W. Ross and George H. Phelps were at Lima yesterday, where they submitted arguments in the case of the city of Findlay by A. W. Thompson and T. C. Kelley, vs. George Nemsyer, Mayor, the city council, city gas board and the board of improvements, in which the plaintiffs ask for an injunction to prevent the sale of the gas plant. Each side was given an hour. The court reserved its decision.

LADIES INTERESTED.

The demonstration of the use of the Fin De Sie'cle hair mounting device by a lady representative of the Parisian Comb company, New York, at Feldmann & Co's store to-day attracted many women. MAYOR OF SANTIAGO.

Senor Bacardi [illegible] Appointed [illegible] Cubans Who [illegible] in the Late War

Santiago, Nov. [illegible] Gen. Wood, at his own request, [illegible] relieved Maj. McLeary of his municipal duties. He [illegible].

In the opinion of Gen. Wood it is preferable to appoint to the mayoralty a civilian acceptable to the Cubans, and he has appointed as Maj. McLeary's successor Senor Bacardi, an old resident. He is anxious to give the mayor as much authority as is compatible with military jurisdiction. The new mayor will conform to Gen. Wood's ideas, which are to give the Cubans every opportunity to show themselves capable of self-government.

The first official act of Mayor Bacardi was to discharge the entire clerical force in the mayor's office and employ Cubans who had served in the war. He will shortly issue a manifesto to the effect that he intends encouraging the city's development and giving employment as far as conditions will permit to worthy persons. He will promise to look closely to the general interests of the community and will call upon all Cubans to obey the law and thus to promote the prosperity of the country and to insure the happiness of its people.

Gen. Wood has high hopes of this first attempt at civil government under Cuban control.

The Cuban commissioners who came to the United States to offer President McKinley the views of the Cuban leaders on the future government of the island expect to go to Washington Monday or Tuesday.

Commencing December 1, the Plant steamship line will run three steamers a week from Port Tampa, Fla., to Havana, Cuba, touching at Key West, leaving Port Tampa on Monday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

The greatest activity prevails at the Havana arsenal. Eight light draught gunboats, used during the insurrection for patrolling the shores and the rivers, are being dry docked, preparatory to sending them home or selling them.

The secretary of state Friday night announced the official vote for Missouri state officials at the recent election. It shows that the democrats carried the state by over 30,000 votes. The vote was about 100,000 short of the vote of 1896.

The torpedo boat Davis, constructed at the Wolff & Zwicker iron works, of Portland, Ore., has been given her official trial trip on the Columbia river. Not only did the Davis make her official trial of two hours successfully, but she made an average speed of 23¼ knots per hour, a full knot in excess of requirements.

At Kansas City, Mo., a jury in the United States district court, which has been trying D. V. Rieger, ex-president, and Robert D. AUCTIONS AT HOME.

How the Daughters of a Western Millionaire Sell Their Clothes to Each Other.

"It's a [illegible] of my town," said a western woman to a New York friend, "there is a [illegible] the custom which is often amusing, and which is [illegible] quite original. The father [illegible], and unlike many rich fathers, he gives his checks blank when he signs them, and never asks any questions. One result of this sometimes is thoughtless expenditure, I won't say extravagance, because the daughters would not willingly disregard their privilege. But when one makes a purchase which she afterward regrets, instead of returning it, as most women would do, an auction is held in the household, and the article is sold to the highest bidder. The auctioneer is the original purchaser.

"Sometimes the auction is very amusing, and the manner of the sale shows a woman's cunning. When I was there last a dress which cost $300 was knocked down to one of the sisters for $15. There were no other bidders. The 'auctioneer' was slightly disappointed, but she didn't know that the purchaser had entered into an agreement with her other sisters not to bid against them on other articles if they wouldn't bid against her on the dress."

GOT EVEN WITH THE HOUSE.

How a Saratoga Waiter Turned the Balance of a Damage Account.

With summer hotels closed and winter resorts in the south still suffering on account of the war, there are hundreds of waiters out of work, and they spend their days in the various offices and resorts where people are likely to go when they look for a colored man servant, says the New York Tribune.

There accounts of summer experiences are exchanged, and landlords and head waiters' good and bad qualities discussed.

"I got the best of our boss last summer," said one waiter who had served his term at Saratoga. "We had to pay 25 cents apiece for everything we broke, and one week I had three pieces to pay for, and every cent came hard because the horses didn't come right for me that week. It didn't make any difference if the piece was a teacup or a teapot, it was 25 cents apiece, and on pay day I just dropped a big vegetable dish for luck. It made the 75 cents one dollar, but I got even with the boss."

EMPRESS ELIZABETH.

The Ill-Fated Lady Positively Declined to Submit Herself to X-Ray Photography.

An interesting picture is drawn by Miss Emma Penther, a nurse who waited upon the ill-fated Elizabeth, empress of Austria, during the time when the victim of the assassin's knife was recuperating at Nauheim. In a letter to the Frankfurter Finanz Herald she says among other things:

"To assist in making a proper diagnosis of the heart trouble of the royal lady, Dr. Schott, her attending physician, made an X-ray photograph of her. When a second attempt was made to use the X-rays her majesty said: 'No, no, professor; I'll not tolerate it agin.' 'But, your majesty, it is absolutely necessary.' 'Perhaps for you and my brother, but not for me. I will not be dissected alive. Take a photograph of one of the peasant boys about here, and send it to my brother as a picture of my heart.' To me the empress said afterward: 'I do not like to be photographed. Every time I have had by photograph taken some misfortune has happened to me.' Otherwise the empress was a most obedient patient. Her nature was naturally refined. She scorned artificial means to add to her natural beauty. Her figure was faultless, and her beautiful hair lay like a crown upon her head. She never wore any jewels, and the only thing of value she carried was a watch with a Greek inscription. An active correspondence was kept up between her and the emperor during her sojourn at Nauheim."

Tolstoi and His Wife.

Tolstoi leaves all practical matters relating to his publications to his wife. She supervises the printing, attends to the correspondence, and reads the proofs. She has brought out two complete editions of his works—one in a sumptuous form, the other a cheap edition for the public. Their text is identical, but the edition de luxe has a number of portaits of the author, some of which cannot be obtained elsewhere.

THE INSIDE FACTS.

Cause of the Indian Outbreak in Northern Minnesota.

Whisky Is at the Bottom of the Trouble—Developments Since the Difficulties First Arose Six Months Ago.

The Indian outbreak in Minnesota like so many other troubles, grew out of whisky, and affords another argument for temperance advocates, says the Chicago Record. The Pillagers are a band of the Chippewa nation, and have a reservation in Cass county, in the northeastern part of Minnesota, almost directly west from Duluth. They are partially civilized cultivate the soil, raise cattle, cut lumber, and wear "store clothes." They have also adopted other features of civilization, such as the use of whisky, and of late years have given the authorities a great deal of trouble by carrying on a contraband traffic.

Fourteen of them were arrested about six months ago and taken to Duluth, where they were convicted by the United States district court of selling liquor without license, selling liquor upon an Indian reservation, and selling liquor to Indians, and were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment from 30 to 90 days.

The ringleader of the whisky trade was Bush Ear, the chief of the tribe who escaped arrest last spring but when they came down to the agency a few weeks ago for their annuities he and other offenders were arrested. The next morning, while the deputy marshal was attempting to take his prisoners to Duluth, a band of Indians rescued them, and there was quite a serious riot. Fearing that the deputy marshal would bring a posse, the Indians retreated to Bear island in Leech lake, about 18 miles from Walker village, in Cass county, and have since remained there, sending messages of defiance to the authorities.

United States Marshal O'Connor has been trying to persuade the Indians to submit peaceably to arrest, but without success. The war department was called on for help, and Lieut. Humphrey and 20 men of the Third United States infantry were sent from Fort Snelling, near St. Paul, to Walker. After looking the ground over and finding there were 300 Indians, fully armed, on Bear island, more troops were asked for, and Gen. Bacon, Col Wilkinson, and 80 men left Fort Snelling for the scene, when the battle took place.

ADORES "MUMMY FACE."

Latest Society Craze at New York, That Has Been Started by a Returned Traveler.

The latest society craze, which was inaugurated by Mrs James P. Kernochen on her return from abroad, is to pose for a photograph in a mummy frame. This startling fancy originated in Cairo, Egypt, in which place Mrs. Kernochen spent last winter. To obtain a mummy case in Cairo is a comparatively easy matter. The enterprising photographer there keeps one in stock for his American patrons.

To have the picture taken the subject steps into the case, which is placed on end, and the lid is then closed, leaving an opening just large enough for the face.

The fad has obtained such popularity, however, that many persons are not waiting for a tour of the east in order to see a picture of their own faces peering out at them from a mummy case New York photographers prepare a picture of a mummy case and simply insert the face of the person desirous of obtaining such a photograph

DIAMONDS IN HEAP OF REFUSE.

Four Hoboken (N. J.) Boys Strike a Mysterious Mine Yielding Jewels.

From among a pile of refuse outside the Powhall Paper company's plant at Hoboken, N. J., four boys during the last week dug diamonds, emeralds, rubies and other precious stones.

Had not a jeweler to whom was offered one diamond, over a carat in weight, thought the stone stolen, this New Jersey Kemberley might still be yielding up treasures unknown save to its discoverers.

The plant of the paper mill is one of several which has during several years past been established on the Hoboken meadows. Paper stock in bales is received from all over the country, so it will be a difficult job to discover whence came the treasures unearthed by the boys.

LIFE IN A PALACE.

Attractive Picture of the Very Simple Home Life of the Czar and Czarina.

A French newspaper publishes a description of the home life of the czar and czarina, which it says, is very simple. The czar, it appears, often remains at his desk until late at night and frequently receives his counsellors and ministers at midnight; but, the paper adds, they rarely find him alone, as the czarina is generally seated beside him, embroidering or sewing. When a stranger appears she picks up her scissors and spools and prepares to leave the room. The emperor thereupon begs her not to go but to remain with him, and the czarina silently returns to her needle while her husband discusses affairs of state.

SURE ENOUGH GOLD MAN.

Klondike Miner Whose Anatomy Yielded Yellow Metal to Value of $270.

Abraham Boyle, of Lander, Wyo., was a guest at the Great Northern hotel, Chicago, the other day. Mr Boyle has just been discharged from the insane asylum at St. Joseph, Mo., where he was sent as the result of an extremely odd disease contracted in the Klondike. During the summer of 1897 he was immersed much of the time up to his waist in the waters of the Yukon. His body succeeded in doing what no medicine invented by man has succeeded in doing as yet, namely absorb gold. While this process might be very lucrative it did not add to the general health of Mr Boyle. In fact, a form of paralysis set in that deprived him of the use of his limbs, and, the disease spreading upward, he eventually became insane. Friends took him to his old home, but his condition did not improve, and he was taken to Laramie, Wyo. He was there put under the charge of Dr William H. Hurers, who took him to a Turkish bath establishment and gave him medicine that consisted largely of mercury. The Homeopathic News vouches for the statement that he was entirely cured by this treatment, and gold to the amount of $270 was drawn from his system by the mercury.

TO HAVE BAND OF ITS OWN.

University of Chicago Students Will Organize a Tooting Corps.

The University of Chicago, founded by John D. Rockefeller, is to have a brass band of its own. Student enthusiasm and college spirit are to find expression through instruments of brass manned by the large-lunged varsity rooters. Where once the tomtoms of the old Midway sounded forth the measures of popular Egyptian march music, university talent will soon be playing rag-time airs and Sousa's latest successes.

President Harper is enthusiastic over the prospect and will encourage the plan, it is said, even to the extent to taking down his cornet and playing with the boys a part of the time. The president was a bandmaster in his younger days and at one time took delight in marching down the street rending the air with the piercing blasts of a B-flat cornet. He has faith in the efficiency of the trumpet to arouse college spirit among his students.

A call for volunteers was issued and personal appeals are being made to every loyal supporter of the maroon to join the organization which will play for the glory of the institution which bears the name of Chicago.

DEFENDS DANCING CLASS.

Jersey City Pastor Who Provides Means of Pleasure for the Poorer Members of His Church.

Rev. John L Scudder, pastor of the Tabernacle and First Congregational church, in Jersey City, N. J., who has started a dancing class in connection with his church work, has done so not only as a means of keeping the young people away from other worldly amusements, but because he believes dancing, under certain conditions, is perfectly proper. Mr. Scudder when seen regarding the dancing class said:

"We have Biblical authority for dancing. Dancing is all right within certain limitations. In the crowded section of the city, where the young people are cooped up in tenements, the desire to dance is as great as among the wealthy, who can entertain their friends and hold receptions in their own homes.

"There is no place for the poor to go to dance but to the public halls. What harm can there be in their dancing beneath the eyes of their pastor and the deacons of the church? While I believe that dancing is perfectly proper in its place, there are limitations I would place upon it."

TRAMPS AWAIT EMPEROR.

National Zeitung Fears That the Kaiser Invites Disaster in His Visit to the Holy City.

The Berlin National Zeitung reports that in anticipation of the festivities planned for the kaiser's reception and sojourn in Jerusalem, the city is already thronged with crowds of German and Austrian tramps and vagabonds.

These men, the Zeitung says, are a dangerous set, who spend their time for the most part in the wine shops, and are forming regular bands of brigands, who commit all sorts of crimes. Unless the Holy City is cleaned of this crowd, concludes the report, before the arrival of the kaiser in Jerusalem, the lives of his majesty and the imperial party will be greatly imperiled during their visit.

The National Zeitung in another article also expressed the fear that, in consideration of the nervous unrest in old world politics, a two months' absence of the German sovereign from the fatherland cannot fail to prove detrimental and is a risky venture at any rate.

THE BIGGEST WEDDING KNOWN

How Alexander the Great, King of Persia, Celebrated His Marriage to Statira.

On the day that Alexander the Great was married no fewer than 20,202 persons in one ceremony were made husbands and wives. This seems impossible, but the event really took place, as historical records tell us. This monster wedding occurred upon the conquest by Alexander the Great of Persia, which was then ruled over by King Darius.

Alexander married Statira, the daughter of the conquered king, and decreed that 100 of his chief officers should be united to 100 ladies from the noblest Persian and Medean families. In addition to this, he stipulated that 10,000 of his Greek soldiers should marry 10,000 Asiatic women.

When everything was settled a vast pavilion was erected the pillars of which were 60 feet high. One hundred gorgeous chambers adjoined this for the 100 noble bridegrooms, while for the remaining 10,000 an outer court was inclosed, outside of which tables were spread for the multitude. Each pair had seats, and ranged themselves in a semi-circle round the royal throne. Of course, the priests could not marry this vast number of couples, so Alexander the Great devised a very simple ceremony. He gave his hand to Statira and kissed her—an example that all the bridegrooms followed.

Thus ended the ceremony, and that vast number were married. Then followed the festival, which lasted five days, the grandeur of which has never been equaled since.

ATROCITIES IN SALVADOR.

Horrible Torture or Death Is Frequently Inflicted Upon Political Prisoners.

A prominent South American in San Francisco has received a copy of El Clarin, a newspaper published in Salvador, which gives details of executions and horrible cruelties perpetrated on many political prisoners at the capital, San Salvador, and elsewhere. At Armenia, Los Veza De Izilco, a prominent citizen, was shot, while Don Angel Vasqazes and Don Delfin Barrios died in prison as the result of cruelties perpetrated by Gen. Aravalo. In the police station Don Salzar and Don Jesus Valdes were triced up by the thumbs, and Cols. Perdiza and Valencio were shot. These officers had distinguished themselves in the army under the regime of the former president.

Twenty ladies have been expelled from San Salvador, among whom is the wife of Don Macario Martinez, one of the most prominent citizens. Under the direction of Gen. Villiegas five persons were shot in San Pedro, while at San Miguel many were executed by Gen. Villavicencio.

The editor of El Latigo, a journal of San Salvador, incurred the displeasure of the government owing to the publication of several articles in his journal in defense of certain students. For his offense he was publicly whipped, as was also the judge who rendered the decision in favor of the students.

HONORS FOR THREE-YEAR-OLD

Summoned as a Juror and Elected a Member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art

It may be a good joke to have your little boy's name appear in the city directory, but those people who wish to indulge in the fun should know that there are unavoidable penalties connected with the matter, says the New York Tribune. The parents of a little lad whose name got into the directory through the "smartness" of a hallboy, had to appear several times before the commissioner of the jurors, whom they finally convinced that a three-year-old could not do justice to the responsible position of juryman. Then they were compelled to make a statement to the tax commissioner after the child had been taxed on $20,000 personal property, and now the joke looms up once more in the shape of a notice from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to the effect that the tot has been proposed for membership. He received notice that he and his family would have free admittance to the museum on pay days, that he would receive invitations to all receptions, lectures, etc., and that his dues were payable by checks, etc. His parents have declined the honor.

Only One Way.

An exchange tells a story of a judge who could not control his temper, and so he could not control other people. One day there was unusual disorder in the courtroom, and at last the judge could endure it no longer. "It is impossible to allow this persistent contempt of court to go on," he exclaimed, "and I shall be forced to go to the extreme length of taking the one step that will stop it!" There was a long silence; then one of the leading counsel rose, and with just a trace of a smile, inquired: "If it please your honor, from what date will your resignation take effect?"

Perforated Insects.

The insect effects its breathing, not, as men and animals do, by the lungs, but through openings in all sides of the body. It has an intricate system of tubes running through all parts of its person, through which the air is brought in contact with the legs, wings and so on. These tubes are each protected by delicate membranes. In the fly there exist certain air pouches, in addition to the tubes, which serve as reservoirs of air.

GIFTS FOR SOLDIERS.

Christmas Boxes to Be Taken to Manila for Our Boys.

Government Will Carry Good Things Which Friends Wish to Send—Must Not Include Many Sweets.

The quartermaster's department of the army is arranging to extend its good offices in the direction of transporting a reasonable amount of Christmas gifts to the American soldiers in the garrison at Manila. It will be necessary to start a steamer from San Francisco early in November in order to reach the Philippines by Christmas, and friends of the soldier boys out beyond the Pacific who wish to forward boxes of good things are already in correspondence with Quartermaster Gen. Ludington on the subject.

The rigid rule has been laid down that Christmas boxes for the soldiers at Manila must not contain quantities of sweet things calculated to disturb the digestion of men living in the tropics. Mincemeat, fruit cake and candy will be permitted only in small parcels, and it is advisable that the packages be limited in weight, as the department will not be able to forward over 1,000 tons at the utmost. The packages will have to be delivered at San Francisco without expense to the government, which has no fund for transporting such supplies, and it is essential that the quartermaster general shall give permission in each case for the package to go aboard a government transport.

EFFECT OF THE WAR.

English Statesman Thinks a Large Armed Force Will Hereafter Be Necessary in United States.

Rt. Hon. Leonard Henry Courtenay, former deputy speaker of the house of commons and now unionist member of parliament for the Bodmin division of Cornwall, speaking at Tideford, Cornwall, said that one of the consequences of the war with Spain upon the American people had been to create a spirit which must in the near future lead to a great transformation of American character and policy.

"Instead of being a self-contained, industrious, peaceful, and non-aggressive people," said Mr. Courtenay, "the Americans, if they take sovereignty in Cuba, will have to keep a large naval and military force in order to make the influence of the United States felt.

"Although the American members of the peace commission have declared that the United States does not want Cuba or the Philippines, the history of our own country has shown that when once there is an occupation the intention to leave after disorder has been righted has seldom been put into execution.

"The war emphasizes the necessity of the peace proposals of the czar. If there had been an organized tribunal to settle international quarrels the Hispano-American conflict might have been averted even after passion had been aroused by the Maine disaster."

FORTIFICATIONS OF HAVANA.

Description of Guns, Ammunition, Sunken Masked Batteries, Etc., Sent to War Department.

The war department has received a detailed description of the fortifications of Havana. Besides old guns there are 43 new guns. These guns are principally of the Hontoria and Ordonez pattern, but there are a few Krupps among them.

The strength of the Spanish garrison in Havana is estimated at 100,000, evenly divided between volunteers and regulars. This strength could have been increased at any time by calling provincial troops to Havana.

The exact number of arms in Havana is not known, but the armament on hand in depots, artillery parks and stores of all divisions of the army of the island of Cuba is: Mauser rifles and carbines, 131,015; Remington rifles, 137,974; of private guerillas, 14,000; total, 282,989. Out of this number only 30,000 are believed to be new. Of cartridges there are 5,000,000.

Great ingenuity has been displayed in the construction of masked batteries. Closely underlying much of the soil in the vicinity of Havana is coral rock, easily excavated. Trenches are cut into it, and from short distances nothing is seen to indicate the existence or extent of defensive works.

WILL BUILD WARSHIPS NEXT.

Marvelous Development of Shipbuilding by the Japanese Government.

Latest reports to the state department tell of a marvelous development of ship building in Japan. United States Consul Harriss, at Nagasaki, says that there has just been delivered there the largest steamship ever launched outside of American and European waters. She is the Hitachi Maru, built by the Mitsu Bishi company, at Nagasaki, and her displacement is 11,600 tons. She is classed by Lloyd as a 100 A-1. Her sister ship will be built at once. There was also opened at Nagasaki a new granite dock 371 feet long, and besides a complete and powerful plant the ship building company has laid its yards for vessels up to 500 feet long, which can also be docked there. The company employs 2,000 men.

LAND CRABS OF CUBA.

They Are Larger Than Sea Crabs and They Live Entirely on the Land.

Jonathan S. Jenkins, an American miniature-painter, lived in Havana during the middle of the century and kept a diary of his experiences. A series of extracts from this diary are being published in the Century, wherein occurs the following description of the land-crab, which caused so much annoyance to American soldiers in the present war:

"These creatures are larger than a sea-crab, and live entirely on the land. They run with great speed, even outstripping a horse. At certain seasons of the year they migrate in large bodies from one side of the island to the other, in columns sometimes half a mile wide, and so dense as almost to stop a carriage on the road they may be crossing. These columns overcome every obstacle in their direct line of march, even high mountains. It is supposed that these migrations are prompted by the instinct of propagation, as the crabs seek the sea-shore, deposit their eggs, and cast off the old shell. These crabs are so common about the city of Matanzas that the inhabitants often receive the sobriquet of cangrejo. They are frequently found in the houses, and in some cases even under the beds.

"There is a species of conch which makes similar marches through the country in immense bodies. These are called pirates, from a very curious habit they display. This creature, which resembles a snail, has the ability of detaching itself from the shell, which, for some reason, is temporarily leaves at times; and while its house is thus vacant, another, passing, will back its body, tail foremost, into the empty shell, and keep possession."

PUNISHMENT OF HERETICS.

The Most Extraordinary Trial in Which the Archbishop Ever Took Part.

Cranmer, in the "Reformatio Legum Ecclesiasticarum," prescribes that the heretic, if obstinate, after a respite of 16 days, is to be delivered to the civil magistrate, "puniendus." This probably means "by death." Thus Joan Bocher and Van Parris were burned alive in 1550 and 1551 with his approval, says the Nineteenth Century. But perhaps the most extraordinary trial for heresy in which the archbishop ever took part was in November, 1539, under Henry's celebrated act of six articles, when, with six of his suffragans, among whom were Gardiner, Tunstall, Stokesley and Sampson, he presided at a solemn disputation in which the king himself entered the lists against a wretched schoolmaster, named Lambert (or Nicholson), who had denied the doctrine of the real presence. The poor heretic showed, it is said, little ability, but great terror when confronted with his opponent.

After five hours of argument, in which "it was wonderful how benignly his grace essayed to convert the miserable man, how strong and manifest reasons his highness alleged against him"—such is Cromwell's testimony—the king brought the trial to a practical issue. "What sayest thou now," he asked the prisoner, "after the instructions of the learned men? Art thou satisfied? Wilt thou live or die?" The man replied that he threw himself on the mercy of his majesty. "Then," said the king, "thou must die, for I will not be the patron of heretics." And he was burned accordingly.

INFLUENCES FOR GOOD.

Some Simple Things That Have an Elevating Influence Upon Mankind.

The regenerating influence of a silk hat is well known. It calls inevitably for a frock coat and an umbrella, which are badges of respectability, and not only lead their possessor to associate with others similarly equipped, but impel him to avoid disreputable folks, who hold such attire in derision. Again, the ownership of a silk hat, a frock coat and an umbrella, all at one and the same time, insensibly promotes habits of neatness and precision, and, in brief, a thorough reformation is eventually effected, from the ground up. All this, as before observed, is well known, but a Chicago man has discovered that an elevator is an almost equally potent moral agent, says the Chicago Chronicle.

"For years," he said, "I never thought of going to bed before one o'clock and the habit of idling away the early night became almost a second nature. Naturally it led to my squandering a great deal of money and threw me into anything but desirable company. Not long ago I rented a room in a building that has an elevator which stops at ten p. m. sharp. If I'm late I have several flights of very steep stairs to climb and I gradually found myself dropping around on time. Now I hardly ever miss the elevator. The result is that I get up earlier, do more and better work, and have drifted away from all my old nighthawk companions. Nothing like an elevator to renovate one's morals, my boy. It's very uplifting."

Benefit of Peerage.

Everyone may not know what the term "benefit of peerage" implies. A peer can demand a private audience of the sovereign to represent his views on matters of public welfare. For treason or felony he can demand to be tried by his peers; he cannot be outlawed in any civil action, nor can he be arrested unless for an indictable offense, and he is exempt from serving on juries. He may sit with his hat on in courts of justice, and should he be liable to the last penalty of the law, he can demand a silken cord instead of a hempen rope.

SPANISH BRAG IN MANILA.

It Has Always Been the Policy of Spain's Minions in Outlying Possessions.

Both the great island possessions—in the West and East Indies respectively—which are now the seats of war between Spain and the United States, were for a time during the last century possessions of the British empire. Havana and Manila were both captured by Great Britain in 1762, and Cuba and the Philippines occupied. A very rare and interesting "Plain Narrative" of the capture of Manila was published by Rear Admiral Cornish and Brig. Gen. Draper in reply to accusations of infringement of the capitulations made against these officers by the Spaniards. Their own allegations are sufficiently strong: "Through the whole of the above transactions the Spaniards, by evasions, avoided complying with the capitulations in every respect, except in bringing the money from the Misericordia and Ordenteara (ships), which it was out of their power to secrete. They bashfully and ungratefully took up arms against us after having their lives given them. They preached publicly in their churches rebellion," etc., says the Nineteenth Century.

At the peace of Paris, however, (1763), which concluded the Seven Years' war, Canada, Louisiana and various islands in the West Indies having been ceded by France and Florida and Minorca by Spain, Great Britain on her part ceded to the latter power Cuba and the Philippines. Yet there is still to be seen—or was during my residence at Manila—at the mouth of the Pasig, and under the ramparts, a dilapidated brick and stucco monument, with an inscription celebrating the expulsion of the invading British by the noble and patriotic Don Simon de Anda—an inscription which afforded great amusement to British naval officers visiting the port.

STAMP FIENDS REJOICE.

English Experts Discover a Clever Forgery That Passed Through the Postmaster's Hands.

The collectors of postage stamps are jubilant just now, for they have found a justification for their own existence. A purchase of shilling stamps has been made by a firm of philatelists, and the experts find they are clever forgeries and must have deprived the government of considerable revenue nearly 25 years ago, says London Sketch.

In these days of photographic and lithographic processes, one may be surprised to find English postage postage stamps forged so seldom. The old black penny stamp, with the letters "V. R." in the corners, attracted the attention of the dishonest, and the fault of this clearly lies with the collectors, whose demand for this particular stamp has raised the price to $25.

Foreign forgeries proceed apace, and South American republics, in the hour of extreme financial depression, often resort to an issue of new stamps to tempt the gentle philatelist. The sale of old dies is also a source of trouble to collectors, who have paid big prices for rare specimens, and find the market flooded with reprints.

The hardened collector seldom or never falls a victim to the forger; he knows all about watermarks, designs, and minutiae of every description; and yet, when one considers the multitude of stamps and the shortness of life, there comes the question whether it would not be better to buy forgeries than waste years learning to detect them.

AN OYSTER'S AGE.

A Person Can Tell It Very Easily by Measuring the Size of the Shell.

It is just as easy to tell the age of an oyster by looking at its shell as it is to ascertain the age of a horse by examining its teeth, or a tree by inspecting the circles revealed by the ax or saw when it is laid low. When the oyster is six months old it is as big as a dime, when one year old it will cover a silver half-dollar, and when two years old will be about the circumference of a silver dollar.

The oyster, unlike the crab, is not obliged to seek new quarters or build a new house every time he grows appreciably. The extensions that he puts on his house are clearly marked by a well-defined ridge, says Pearson's Weekly.

Oysters are esteemed to be at their best when between four and five years of age, and the planters endeavor to protect the beds for that length of time. Conscientious oystermen, that is, men who are not inclined to kill the goose that lays the golden egg, always return to the bed oysters that are too young, but in case a patriarch is brought up, over whose shell the tides of from eight to twelve winters and summers have ebbed and flowed, he is sent to market, where he is put at the bottom of the heap and sold with his younger and more luscious companions.

Ant Eggs and Meal Worms.

There is a kind of ant eggs imported from Africa that are sold as food for goldfish. In the form in which they are imported they are apparently dried, and in appearance they somewhat resemble scraps of cork. They are very light, floating on the water, and for that reason they are a clean food. Ant eggs are sold put up in boxes, and also by the ounce, at ten cents an ounce. Meal worms are a food sold for birds. These are sold by count, at 20 to 25 cents a hundred.

Japan Has Words Enough.

The Japanese language is made up of 60,000 words.

MYSTERY OF TWO LAKES.

They Are Far Apart in Europe, But Are Agitated by the Same Storms.

The Wetternsee in Sweden, like so many other lakes, has long enjoyed the local reputation of being a bottomless pit. The Swedish scientists have now destroyed the venerable legend, for in the measurement taken a few days ago they have successfully demonstrated that the greatest depth of the lake is only 119 meters. There still remains, however, a series of mysteries which science must be content to leave unsolved—at least for a time. It is not only a legendary belief, but there is a quasi-scientific ground for the queer supposition that living creatures, animals and vegetable, can and do make journeys to and fro between the high northern lake of Wettern and the South German lake of Constance. This bold conclusion has been partly justified by the appearance of exactly the same fauna, and even of the same animal life, in the Swedish and the Swabian inland seas.

It is even asserted that whenever there is a storm on the lake of Constance the lake of Wettern begins sympathetically to roll and swell, and that the southern lake is similarly moved by any agitation in the distant northern lake. The Kleine Zeitung soberly declares this sympathetic phenomenon to be a known fact, but considerately adds that we will have to wait some time for the rational explanation of it.

A CURIOUS STORY.

How Some Squirrels in Maine Fed a Flock of Hungry Sheep with Apples.

A Bar Harbor man tells this story of how the squirrels on White island often spend their time in feeding a flock of sheep from a certain orchard there. He says that he and his companion, who were duck-shooting there last fall, had stopped to rest in an old field in which there was an orchard. A flock of sheep was feeding near by. It was not long before their attention was called to the chirruping of some squirrels in a thicket, and they were surprised to see the sheep suddenly stop feeding and manifest great excitement. The squirrels went into the orchard and, climbing one of the trees, resumed their loud chatter, evidently calling the sheep, since the flock made for the apple tree. Then the squirrels began to bite off the apples, which fell among the hungry sheep, who would struggle for the fruit like so many school-boys.

The squirrels, says the Kennebec Journal, seemed to enjoy the fun, and after they had dropped a few apples from the first tree they skipped to a distant tree, for which the sheep would make in great confusion. After the squirrels had thus enjoyed an hour's fun with their fleecy neighbors and supplied them with a sufficient quantity of the fruit, they scampered back to their haunts in the thicket, leaving the sheep to resume their grazing.

MEDICAL TREATMENT FREE.

The Sick Poor Are Taken Care of in France by Provisions of the Government.

Official reports show that France, with a population of 38,500,000, has nearly 1,500,000 of indigent persons, of whom 375,000 are inscribed as sick. The country physicians are paid to attend them and the total thus disbursed in 1895, the first year the scheme was practically in operation, amounted to 1,771,478 francs. Each one of the 13,000 practitioners received, on an average, about 150 francs.

The average to each physician is 30 patients, with three or four visits to each at about 30 cents (a franc and a half), for each visit.

The total expense includes hospital and midwife service, transportation, instruments and medicines, and amounted to 4,898,630 francs. This expense was shared by the community, the department and the state, respectively, 3,600,002, 1,104,710 and 305,196 francs.

The first article of the law states in effect: "Every sick French person without resources receives, free of charge, from the community, the department or the state, medical care at home or in a hospital. Lying-in women are included in these provisions. Sick foreigners without resources are also included if the government has entered into a treaty of reciprocal assistance with the nation to which they belong."

In Handwriting.

Perhaps it is not generally known that Mohammedans never use printed Korans; because in doubt as to the ingredients entered into the composition of the printing ink. They are afraid of being defiled by taking into their hands a copy of the sacred book which may have been produced with the ink in which pig's fat, instead of linseed oil, has formed one of the component parts. They therefore confine themselves to reading handwritten reproductions of the prophet's work, which are naturally very expensive.

A Questionable Compliment.

Lieut. Sharpe, of the navy, was lately appointed to one of the vessels recently bought by the government, and had an interview with the secretary of the navy. He observed that his new ship bore the same name as his wife, adding, with a smile, that she had hastened to remind him that it would be the first Josephine he had ever commanded. The secretary seemed amused. A few days later the name was changed to the Vixen, and now Mrs. Sharpe wants to know why.

What a jolly time the twenty young Misses had yesterday afternoon who were invited to an old folks' tea party at Miss Charlotte Pixley's, on Nye street. The hours were from 3 to 6 and not a moment was wasted in enjoying the amusement afforded by the fair entertainer, Martha Washington, and a number of her friends drank tea and chatted over the grounds telling fortunes Of course other dainties accompanied the tea and the merry crowd were loath to leave at 6.

The fortnightly entertained their husbands and guests last evening in royal style at the cozy home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hiner, in West Spring street. The dining room was brightened with great bunches of chrysanthemums in their gorgeous colors of pink and white which lent contrast to snowy linens set with the handsomest of China and cut glass. The dinner was served at 6 o'clock in four courses and during the discussion of the tempting morsels, the conversation of the brilliant assembly contributed their wealth of experience and enthusiasm to the great enjoyment of each other, after which Miss Blanch Moore and Miss Vera Watson rendered some delightful music. The spirit of informality which made the dinner such a charming function was present in its most attractive form. The guests enjoying the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Doan Cunningham, of Chicago; Lou Cunningham, of Toledo; Miss Blanch Moore, of Wapak; Miss Vera Watson and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Johnston.

Add two even teaspoonfuls of salt and one teaspoonful of pepper. Stir all thoroughly together and moisten with a little soup stock. Pack in a buttered mould which has been rinsed in cold water, cover tightly and steam for five hours Turn out of the mould and put in a moderate oven for half an hour, leaving the oven door open. Then place under a heavy press and allow the meat to become very cold before slices are cut off. The loaf ought to be made two days before the picnic. Salads are not often included in a picnic hamper, still they add zest to the feast Lobsters can be cut small and packed in a can Also the dressing can be carried

The tin plate trust now forming with a capital of $51,000,000, is not included in this showing. To what extent the Sherman law for regulation of these combines, and declared by the supreme court to be constitutional, will be effective in the protection of the people, remains to be seen.

A GEORGIA pastor, evidently in support of woman's rights, has adopted the plan of having the collection plate in his church passed around by young women The result of such innovation is said to be all the designer expected, in greatly increasing contributions It is alleged that old bachelors are known to substitute bills for silver, while younger men give half dollars instead of nickels. Such innovation may by some be regarded as too rash, especially by the male elders and deacons now charged with such work. And yet, it is but a continued advance in matters so long existing. The women have come to be charged with pretty much all other church service, and it is not surprising that this should be added. They "pass the plate" at church festivals. Why not elsewhere?

GUARDED THE COAST.

History of Operations of the Signal Service During War.

System Should be Made Permanent, in the Opinion of Capt. John R. Bartlett, Superintendent of the Service.

A complete history of the operations of the United States coast signal service is presented in the report of Capt. John R. Bartlett, who was the superintendent of that service. This institution was born of the emergency created by the war and Capt. Bartlett shows how, within one week after the orders had gone out by telegraph, the entire coast was under observation from a chain of stations extending from Maine to Texas. There were eight districts in which were distributed 36 signal stations officered and manned by the state naval militia, a force of 18 officers and 219 men. The largest force was necessarily on duty in Florida, five officers and 52 men, while Massachusetts had two officers and 41 men. New Jersey and Pennsylvania had each five men. It was the purpose of all these observers primarily to detect and report immediately to headquarters in Washington by telegraph or telephone the approach of an enemy's ship. But actually many other useful purposes were served.

Capt. Bartlett says that the practical operation of this service for the three months of its existence has convinced him that it would have served the use for which it was established, namely, to observe and report the approach of an enemy's vessel. Then it served an excellent purpose in advising the department of the movements of United States vessels and was particularly serviceable in reporting and communicating with the Oregon, when the whole country was anxious for news of her, and the San Francisco when that vessel needed assistance. But the most valuable result of the test, in the judgment of Capt. Bartlett, has been to determine the points along the coast at which signal stations are necessary. The captain thinks that the coast signal service should be an integral part of a national coast defense system manned by the naval militia, of whose services he speaks in the highest terms. As an outline of a permanent system such as is maintained by every European country, Capt. Bartlett suggests that each life-saving station should be made a coast signal station, the trustworthy and well-disciplined crews making good material for signal men. The weather bureau stations, and such lighthouses as are necessary to fill in gaps, should also be made a part of the system. Permanent coast signal stations should be established at those points: Monhegan Island, Me.; Rockport, Mass.; Highland Lights, Mass.; Montauk Point, N. Y.; Fire Island, N. Y.; Sandy Hook, N. J.; Barnegat, N. J.; Cape Henlopen, Del.; Cape Henry, Va.; Morris Island, S. C.; Tybee Island, Ga.; Palm Beach, Fla., and Sand Island, Fla.

Capt. Bartlett suggests a list of equipment supplies for these stations, including homing pigeons, which he says must be trained for one year to be of service. He says that such a system could be economically inaugurated and operated. In time of peace it would be a constant convenience to the navy department and maritime interests of the country and a constant practice would prepare the men for the emergencies of the war. It is most essential, in his judgment, to the naval and commercial interests of the United States.

OFFICIAL COURTESIES.

Meeting Between Maj. Gen. Shafter and Maj. Gen. Miles in an Omaha Hotel.

Official courtesies between Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter and Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles the other day were confined to the two passing each other in the Millard hotel corridor a few minutes after the former's arrival in Omaha.

The hero of Santiago said to the hero of Puerto Rico. "Sent my card to your room a few minutes ago, and you were out."

The hero of Puerto Rico replied to the hero of Santiago: "I am sorry, won't you come up?"

The hero of Santiago replied: "I am sorry, too, but the committee is waiting for me. I hope we shall meet again."

That was the only meeting between the two major generals. Gen. Shafter staid away from Gen. Miles' celebration and Gen. Miles staid away from Gen. Shafter's celebration.

BUSINESS IN PHILIPPINES.

Chinese Control the Retail Trade in the Islands—The Spanish Come Next in Order.

United States Consul Frankenthall, at Ferne, has collected some information upon business opportunities in the Philippines, which he has made the subject of a special report to the state department. The published report contains in short compass a great deal of information that may be of value to business men intending to find openings at Manila. The Chinese, it seems, control the retail trade of the islands, the Spanish coming next in order and the remainder of the list including about 300 citizens of other European countries. Caution is advised in dealing with the Chinese merchants, as Manila has no mercantile register

NAVY NEEDS MEN

Embarrassing Situation Should Peace Be Declared Before Congress Takes Action.

If a treaty of peace with Spain should be signed before congress makes provisions for an increase in the enlisted strength of the navy that important branch of the government would be badly crippled. With the increase of the navy there has been a demand for more men, and at the beginning of hostilities congress authorized Secretary Long to enlist enough men to man the vessels, but their services must be dispensed with when peace is declared. April 1, when preparations for war were being made, the men and apprentices numbered 13,096, and under the authority allowed in the conduct of the war this was increased until the maximum strength was reached August 15, when 24,122 enlisted men were in the service. This number has been gradually decreased by discharge of the naval reserves until there remained on October 15 only 20,279 men. Of these 750 are on receiving ships and 400 of them are short term men, and not available for foreign service.

Secretary Long asserts that if further reductions are made the navy will be crippled, the departments will be unable to reestablish European and other foreign stations, and will be compelled to put some of the vessels out of commission.

Secretary Long will ask congress for an increase of at least 7,500 men, which will bring the enlisted strength of the navy up to 30,000. Every day hundreds of applications for discharge are made by men who enlisted for the war and whose positions in civil life are in jeopardy because they do not resume their duties. The department is unable to grant these requests and this may cause many of the men who fought for their country to lose their positions in civil life.

SEA-SIGNALING DEVICE.

Improved Apparatus Given a Thorough and Successful Test at Hoboken, N. J.

An interesting test was made at the Hoboken (N. J.) pier of the North German Lloyd Steamship company of the lucigraph, an invention of John W. Hayward for signaling at sea. The lucigraph is a combination of typewriter and stereopticon. Instead of a screen a rapidly revolving "pin-wheel" is used, on which are thrown the signal letters that are brought before a strong light on slides worked by a keyboard. A pure white light thrown upon the disk is intended by the inventor as a signal of attention. When answered by another vessel, the letters representing the international code messages are thrown upon the disk. These letters may vary from a minimum of 15 feet to any size, and may be seen by the naked eye at a great distance. The test proved successful. Letters of light 18 feet in length were thrown upon a revolving screen, and could be seen with ease from the New York side.

WILL CAUSE A BOOM.

Decision to Retain All Vessels Purchased During War Will Keep Ship Builders Busy.

It is expected that the decision of the secretary of the navy to retain all the vessels purchased during the war will have the effect of causing a boom in American shipbuilding. It comes just at a time when there is an unusual demand for ships flying the American flag on account of the expanding commerce of the United States in general and particularly on account of the decision of the administration to confine trade between American ports and Puerto Rico to American vessels.

The navy, in preparing for war, drew very largely upon the tonnage of the coastwise and foreign lines sailing under the American flag and the business of these lines cannot be restored to its former proportions until vessels have been built to supply the places of those taken by the government. To restore to these lines the number of vessels they had before the war will require the construction of 17 vessels.

MONTH IN DRY DOCK.

Grounding on Coral Reef at Guantanamo Necessitates Thorough Overhauling of Her Plates.

When the cruiser Brooklyn went into the new timber dry dock a few days ago at the navy yard, Constructor Bowles and his assistants immediately set to work and inspected the vessel's bottom. While the cruiser was at Guantanamo it struck a coral reef, and it was thought at the time it was seriously damaged. The report of Mr. Bowles to the navy department of what he sees, now that the Brooklyn is in dry dock, is that the ship grounded forward, and that its bottom is badly scraped for a distance of 90 feet, extending outward on the starboard side. On the port side is another long scar. The plates are dented, varying from a half inch to two inches, but the rivets are in place. Mr. Bowles says it will be fully a month before the Brooklyn can leave the dry dock.

THE CREEK INDIANS.

Dissatisfied with Their Treatment They Propose to Establish Mexican Colony.

Dissatisfied with the provisions of a law enacted by the last session of congress which will destroy the tribal government the Indians of the Creek nation are about to remove to Mexico. Assistant Secretary of the Interior Ryan when asked if the government had taken any steps toward assisting these Indians in leaving the country replied that it was a matter with which the government had nothing to do. The Indians are free to go if they choose and the government would not regret their departure as they are an expense and trouble to the government and the white people living near their reservations. The object of the law enacted by the last congress is to break up all tribal governments and gradually merge the Indians into the body politic and in time make them citizens. Indians of the Creek nation do not take kindly to this project and have sent a committee to Mexico to select lands for a new reservation for the tribe.

Although the government will not interpose any obstacles, their departure is a long way in the future unless the Creeks surrender their lands to the secretary of the interior and leave empty handed. Their lands are held in common and before individual Indians can realize on them congress will have to allot the land in severalty. Then the Indians can dispose of their holdings and with the proceeds leave the country.

Secretary Ryan says the Creeks are at liberty to go when they please, and the government would be glad to solve the whole vexatious Indian problem so easily.

LIQUID AIR IS DANGEROUS.

Brooklyn Professor Experiments with Red Phosphorus and Is Hurt.

While experimenting with red phosphorus in liquid air, Prof. Irving W. Fay, in the chemical laboratory of the Polytechnic institute, Brooklyn, the other day, had his face burned and his eyes were temporarily sightless. The shock of the explosion stunned him. Whether it is the phosphorus of the liquid air that explodes no one knows.

Some remarkable experiments with the liquid air had been performed previous to the explosion. Butter in the liquid air was reduced to a fine, dry dust; an oyster became as hard as the shell from which it was extracted.

Prof. Fay placed half a pint of mercury in a paper mold and poured over the surface liquefied air. The quicksilver was frozen into a rigid bar so cold that it blistered the flesh to touch it. He fastened a weight of 40 pounds to the bar and it thawed sufficiently to let the weight fall in 15 minutes only.

The professor poured liquid air over alcohol, and soon the latter was frozen into a snowy mass of crystals. He stirred this mass and reduced it to the condition of viscid sugar. He lifted that out with a stick, from which it hung down in an icicle seven or eight inches long. He poured more liquid air over it and it was rigid.

M'KINLEY'S SCOTCH ANCESTRY

Traced Back Through Thirty-Four Generations—Name Should Be Spelled MacKinlay.

Rev. Ralph E. MacDuff, one of the delegates to the Episcopal convention at Washington, which has just adjourned, has looked up the ancestry of President McKinley, and finds it pure Scotch. After following the family for 34 generations, from the year 834, through the Clans MacDuff and Macintosh, to the Clan MacKinla, he concludes that, although the ancestor in the line, James MacKinlay, went to the north of Ireland, whence his son emigrated to America before the revolutionary war, there is no apparent trace of Celtic blood, the family tree showing a clear Gaelic strain. Dr. MacDuff declares that the president's name should be spelled MacKinlay, the E having been introduced by James McKinley, the north of Ireland trooper, who came to this country.

WILL PRINCE OF WALES COME?

Report Reaches London That President McKinley Would Send Him an Invitation.

A report from the United States to the effect that President McKinley would invite the prince of Wales to visit the United States has attracted attention. While the London papers cordially endorse the suggestion of a royal visit to America, as tending to further cement the good feeling between the two countries, it is thought improbable that the prince of Wales will go. But an evening newspaper points out that the duke of York has given a half promise to go to Canada next year and it adds that there is nothing impossible in the idea that if President McKinley follows the example of President Buchanan, the duke of York will follow in the footsteps of his father and extend his visit to the United States.

Teaching Blind Chinese.

By a system of numeral type invented by Rev W. H. Murray, of Peking, originally a Scotch workman, the blind people of China are now taught to read and write in less than three months, and this in spite of the fact that there are 408 distinct sounds in the Chinese language. By a special adaptation of this system the blind are now actually teaching sighted pupils to read.

Earthenware Sleepers in Use in Japan.

Earthenware sleepers are in use on some of the Japanese railroads.

A CURIOUS FACT.

It Is Very Strange Yet True That Radiantly Beautiful Women Love Homely Men.

"The older I get," said a writer in the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "the more certain I become that personal beauty has nothing to do with romantic love—I mean on the part of women. I saw an example on the street car just now—a creature as exquisite as a morning in May openly mooning over a fellow ugly enough to scare a coyote out of the Bad Lands. There was no sort of doubt about it, either, and the rapt way she gazed up into his misfit mug would have boiled six gallons of liquid air. He took it nonchalantly, the rascal, and didn't seem to appreciate his luck. But that's the way of it the world over. Your radiantly beautiful women generally lose their hearts to men who could give a gargoyle points on plainness and I'll bet if the truth was known Paris was homely enough to break a camera. If he had been a handsome chappie Helen would have stuck to her hubby and Troy wouldn't have fallen. But what I started out to say was this: There is a total lack of reciprocity in the game; and it's the rarest thing in the world for a good-looking man to become enamored of a homely woman. When he does you can generally bet that his vision has been inspired by her cold cash. But if it wasn't for the inexplicable penchant of Beauty for the Beast the race of ugly folk would be perpetuated exclusively by the types of Venus and Apollo. Perhaps it's better, however, the way it is."

LITTLE KNOWN ISLANDS.

Peculiarities of Dress and Customs in the Recently Acquired Faroes of Denmark.

The Faroe islands have been incorporated with the kingdom of Denmark for many years and send two members to the Danish parliament but they retain a certain degree of independence. Their local affairs are managed by an assembly which sits in Thorshavn and still is called the lagthing, though it is under the presidency of an amtman appointed by the king; and they enjoy special exemption from conscription and from export and import duties says Blackwood's Magazine.

Both sexes have an air of refinement and dignity often seen among true peasants, but the men are usually handsome. They are not tall but strong and well built, with broad shoulders and magnificent calves.

Their costume shows them off to the best advantage, for it consists (with the exception of a loose coat, which is not always worn) of tight fitting garments—a knitted guernsey or a cloth jacket adorned with silver buttons, black knee breeches, felt-like gray stockings and hide shoes; while their high caps colored in narrow stripes of red and blue or black, add to their apparent height.

If one of them is asked to what nationality he belongs he will answer "To Faroe," and if reminded that Faroe is now a province of Denmark, "Yes," he will say, "but our ancestors came from Norway, and the only Dane who came near these parts at the settling was killed in Iceland."

A CHINESE SURGEON.

One Who Was Speedily Led to Appreciate the Superiority of Modern Methods.

When Dr. Wenyon, the famous medical missionary, went to China, many years ago, he had to combat a great deal of prejudice against the practice of his profession. However, many patients came to him and he made many cures, but some of the Chinese literati jealously instigated an opposition hospital to Wenyon's equipped with all the facilities for the practice of medicine according to Chinese etiquette.

A staff of Celestial doctors administered the drugs. The place was called "The Hall of Ten Thousand Virtues," but somehow that did not assist the cures. In fact, it came to be a case of going to Wenyon's for a cure and to the "Ten Thousand Virtues" for a coffin.

One day there came to the missionary a stately gentleman, a learned man belonging to the upper classes, having a painful disorder needing surgical treatment. He hired a private room, was operated on and in a fortnight he was well. He had not told who he was but before he went away he said to the doctor:

"You might like to know who I am, and I want to tell you, because I am so grateful for being cured of this terrible disease. I am the head physician of the Hall of Ten Thousand Virtues."

MOODY AND THE ROWDY.

How the Well-Known Evangelist's Quick Wit Saved Him from a Probable Drubbing.

A few years ago when Evangelist Moody was preaching in the slums of a large city he was delayed in leaving the hall till late in the evening, says a writer in Ladies' Home Journal. The exit was in a back street, and as he left the building he found a number of roughs waiting to annoy him. As he walked along he heard them say: "Here he comes!" and they prepared to jostle him from the sidewalk. Going straight up to the ringleader, Mr. Moody held out his overcoat, and, with self-possession that commanded complete respect, said:

"My friend, won't you just help me on with this overcoat? I am not quite so active now as I was at your age, and some day, when you are as old as I am, I'll be glad to do you the same favor."

No bully was ever more completely taken by surprise. He held the overcoat for the evangelist to get into it, and then thanking the young man for his aid, Mr. Moody went along unmolested.

Hints on Advertising.

Have the goods to advertise.

Tell your story plainly in the newspaper that the people read, and in language they will easily understand, and observe the following advertising points:

Profitable advertising results from good goods being offered well.

Give your rival's advertising attention, but give your rival no advertising.

Advertising prestige is hard to win, but not hard to lose. It is easiest sustained.

The ad should be so plain that it will be understood by a reader of little understanding.

Your advertising should be a continuous story yet each ad should be complete in itself.

And Remember,

More than half the people in Lima read The News, and that prosperity comes only from persistent pushing.

The meetings conducted by Mr. Nash are proving very interesting and attractive. Each afternoon, including Saturday, there will be a Bible Reading at 3:30 at the Market Street Presbyterian church. The public generally invited.

Mr. Frye, of the C., H. & D. shops, has been secured as teacher of the Mechanical Drawing class in place of Mr. Feightner, who has left the city.

LORENZO SNOW, PRESIDENT OF THE MORMON CHURCH.

President Snow became a believer in the revelations of Joseph Smith when quite a young man, and soon afterward was ordained and entered upon the labor of proselyting in America and Europe. He was very successful and, returning to America, joined the western movement, reaching Salt Lake in 1848. He was ordained a member of the Twelve Apostles in 1849. He was one of Brigham Young's trusted counselors, and has had all the honors the church can bestow. In the years of his service President Snow has journeyed 150,000 miles, a record excelled only by that of the late President Woodruff.

THE WISCONSIN.

A Description of the Great Battle Ship Launched at Union Iron Works in San Francisco, Saturday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—The dimensions of the battle ship Wisconsin, which was launched at the Union iron works Saturday morning, are as follows:

Length, on load water line, 368 feet; beam extreme, 72 feet 2¼ inches; draft on normal displacement of 11,525 tons, 23 feet 6 inches; maximum displacement, all ammunition and stores on board, 12,325 tons; maximum indicated horse power (estimated), 10,000; probable speed, 16½ knots. Normal coal supply, 800 tons; coal supply, loose storage, 1,200 tons; full bunker capacity, 1,400 to 1,500 tons. Complement of officers, 43; seamen, marines, etc., 448.

The main battery will consist of four 13-inch breech loading rifles in Hichborn balanced turrets, oval in shape, and placed in the center line of the vessel, and 14 6-inch rapid fire guns. The secondary battery will consist of 16 6-pounder rapid fire guns, 4 1-pounder rapid fire guns, two Colt guns and two field guns. She will carry four torpedo tubes. The 13-inch guns have an arc of fire of 133 degrees on each side of the center line; and the 6-inch an arc of 90 degrees on the broad side, with the advantage of those on the upper deck of a direct fire ahead and astern. An injury to or near either of these 6-inch guns will be confined to its own compartment, as a 1½ inch steel splinter bulkhead separates each of these guns from its neighbor.

The armor belt, which extends from the stem to abaft the after turret, is to be 16¼ inches thick at the top, and 9¼ inches thick at the bottom. Except at the forward end where it will be tapered to 4 inches at the stem. This belt armor will extend from 4 feet below the normal load line to 8½ feet above it, and will maintain the full thickness amidships between the turrets, and for the distance occupied by the engines and boilers. Diagonal armor 12 inches thick, connecting this belt armor and barbettes and extending from the slopes of protective deck to top of side belt, on each side, is worked to give protection from raking fires.

There will be two sets of triple expansion, twin-screw engines, each in its own separate water-tight compartment; the collective indicative horse-power will be 10,000 with 120 revolutions per minute. Stroke, 4 feet.

There are eight cylindrical boilers, each 15½ feet in diameter by 9 feet 11¾ inches long, having a grate surface of 693 square feet with 21,200 square feet of heating surface, pressure 180 pounds. These boilers are placed, two each, in four separate water-tight compartments. The smoke pipes are two in number and stand abreast of each other.

Earthquake Shocks.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 26.—Many points in south and southwest Virginia report having experienced an earthquake shock about 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The disturbance was felt from Nottoway county to the Tennessee line. There was the usual preceding roaring noise. No damage is reported.

FINE VENEZUELAN CATTLE.

Large Shipments Are Being Made From Puerto Cabello to Ports in Cuba—The Climates Said to Be Similar.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Consul Ellsworth at Puerto Cabello has notified the state department that large shipments of fine Venezuelan cattle are being made from Puerto Cabello to ports to Cuba. "If Cuba and Porto Rico," he says, "have a climate similar to that of Colombia and Venezuela, iced meats will give considerable trouble, if it answer at all, while live cattle raised in a similar climate can be killed when necessary for consumption and will require very little care."

DEAFTESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous linings of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

OIL IN THE STREETS.

Tanks Punctured by Falling Derricks at Los Angeles—Several Houses and Barns Crushed—Severe Storm.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 26.—A terrible windstorm in the oil district caused much damage. Thirty-seven derricks and many overhead pulley wires and smokestacks were blown down. Two oil tanks holding a thousand gallons of oil were punctured by falling derricks and the oil is running through the streets. Several houses and barns were crushed under the falling derricks. No casualties are reported.

Two hundred men are clearing away the debris in the streets.

AMERICAN CAMP IN HAVANA.

All of the Four Companies of the 2d Regiment Volunteer Engineers Arrive at the Capital of Cuba.

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—All four companies of the 2d regiment volunteer engineers which arrived off Marianao beach Friday morning on board the United States transport Florida, landed by half-past 9 o'clock at the Marianao wharf with colors flying. They formed at the landing place and marched to their camp, two miles away, filing past Gen. Greene and his staff, who, on horseback, reviewed the men. All the men, with the exception of five, who are still suffering from sea sickness and were taken to the camp by train, were in line and all are in good spirits and fit for duty. One hundred and fifty Cubans of Gen. Monecles' division were employed in cleaning the camp site, and by 11 o'clock the tents were being pitched for the first American camp at Havana.

The Horse That Gen. Haskell Rode to His Death

IN Λ MARVELOUS CHARGE

At the Battle of El Caney Is Now on Exhibition at the Metellus Thomson Dry Goods Store.

The Metellus Thomson Dry Goods Company have added an attraction to their immense stores, 233 and 235 North Main street, which will be of interest to every woman, man and child.

This enterprising concern, after a great deal of trouble and expense, has secured "Frank," the dumb hero from Santiago, the horse that General Haskell rode over the hills, through the chapparel and barbed wire fences in the marvelous charge of the seventeenth, at the battle of El Caney, July first and second, and the animal will be on exhibition in the rear part of the store to-night, where he will remain, the center of attraction until Christmas time. This noble animal has a history that is interesting. It is given below:

Frank left Columbus barracks April 9th, for Tampa, Florida. He sailed from there on a transport, landing at Baiquri, Cuba, a little hamlet 15 miles from Santiago on June 22d. After swimming for half a mile through the surf, he carried his master over bridle paths and through chapparel for three days, camping with the army on cow paths at night without pitching a tent or lighting a fire, orders being given to keep quiet so the Spanish pickets could not suspect the close proximity of the American army. On June 25th Frank carried Gen. Haskell within a few miles of Santiago, to the top of the rocky cliff, from which elevated position Morro Castle could be plainly seen and with it the city of Santiago. On the evening of July 1st Frank marched all night with the command through the muddy roads and streams, after being under fire from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 p. m., and at daylight his command again engaged the Spaniards before El Caney, entrenched in rifle pits, ditches and block houses. This battle lasted until late in the afternoon, during which time Gen. Haskell (Frank's owner) was shot three times and badly wounded by Mauser bullets, and at on the front [illegible] for hours. After Gen. Haskell was wounded Frank accompanied him to Siboney and later sailed with him on the transport Hudson for Fort Monroe. After wards transferred to New York and then to the barracks at Columbus, and [illegible] Metellus Thomson Dry Goods Co. from Gen. Haskell's widow since his death.

For the [illegible] few weeks Frank has been under the care of a veterinary surgeon, the campaign at Cuba reducing him to a feather weight. He is of a very gentle disposition and can all but talk. By his good horse sense he has already won the friendship of his new owners, and many times the price paid for him would not tempt them to part with Frank.

Mr Schrader, the genial manager, extends to all a cordial invitation to call and see the horse which was in the thickest of one of the most thrilling battles during the recent war.

Arguments in the Standard Oil Contempt Proceedings Made Yesterday.

Standard Claimed That There Are No Such Records as Mr. Monnett Asked For—Court Will Decide Next Tuesday.

Columbus, O., Nov. 26.—Attorney General Monnett yesterday took the refusal of the Standard Oil Company to produce its records, as desired by the state's attorneys who are gathering depositions in the contempt proceedings, to the supreme court. He called the attention of the court to the fact that the attorney for the Standard Oil Company had advised their clients not to do so, on the ground that the supreme court itself had ruled they need not. The attorney general declared the Standard Oil Company is violating an order of the court and defying the court to make it produce the desired records, which they show, he claimed, that there has been violation of the court's decree. He summed the case up by asserting that the court's annals did not show a bolder attempt to set at naught the court's judgments.

Mr. E. B. Kirkead also appeared for the state. Mr. Virgil P. Kline, of Cleveland; Mr. H. E. Elliott, of New York, and Mr. Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, O., appeared for the Standard Oil Company. They claimed, first, that there are no such records as Mr. Monnett has asked for, and, second, that it would incriminate Mr. C. B. Squires, secretary of the Standard Oil Company, to produce them. The court will decide the motion next Tuesday.
